

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Getting ready to cook!

Learning Outcome

Describe emotions and feelings in present and past situations in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What is your favorite kind of food?
- Is there a meal that you really like to cook? What is it?
- Do you think it is healthier to cook food at home or to eat in a restaurant? Why?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about people's personalities and use colloquial expressions
- I can talk about the result of an action or an event.
- I can talk about unlikely or impossible situations in the present or in the future.

Let's Explore!

Peter tells Amy there's always one bad apple in the bunch.

* "There's always one bad apple in the bunch" means that there's always one thing to ruin the group.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: Okay, if you would both pick a few recipes, we could make a shopping list. You need to make sure that you always have the basics in your kitchen so that you can make a quick and healthy meal with just a few fresh ingredients. A big mistake that many people make is not having basic spices and base ingredients to cook with. That's when you end up ordering take out food or picking up fast food on the way home.
- Peter: Yes. I never have the right ingredients in my kitchen, and consequently, I eat too much fast food.
- Vanessa: So, let's look at a couple recipes. You two can pick some that sound interesting and delicious!
- Amy: How about this? Vegetable broth soup? It looks so easy that I could even make it.
- Peter: Broth? Sounds boring!
- Amy: Peter, if you would just look at it, you would see that it's healthy and sounds really tasty.
- Peter: Amy, if you would take a little more time to look, we could find something more interesting.
- Vanessa: Okay you two. No arguing or else you won't make it through the month. These are such good recipes that I've served them all in the restaurant.
- Peter: Lentil and sweet potato stew? No thanks. I hate lentils. This recipe is out!
- Vanessa: Lentils are so good for you though. If you would just try them in some recipes I think you would change your mind.
- Amy: I'll make the lentil recipe. You can try a bit Peter, to see if you like it. You're gonna have to throw caution to the wind and try some new things; otherwise, you'll be stuck in a rut. Try to be a little bit more broad-minded.
- Vanessa: Okay, are we ready to go to the supermarket?

Let's Practice!

That's when you end up ordering take out food.

Instructions: Read the sentences and circle all the result clauses.

1. You need to have the basics so that you can make a quick and healthy meal with just a few fresh ingredients.
2. I never have the right ingredients in my kitchen, and; consequently, I eat too much fast food.
3. It looks so easy that even I could make it.
4. No arguing or else you won't make it through the month.
5. These are such good recipes that I've served them all in the restaurant.
6. You're going to have to throw caution to the wind and try some new things; otherwise, you'll be stuck in a rut.

Let's Practice!

Okay, are we ready to go to the supermarket?

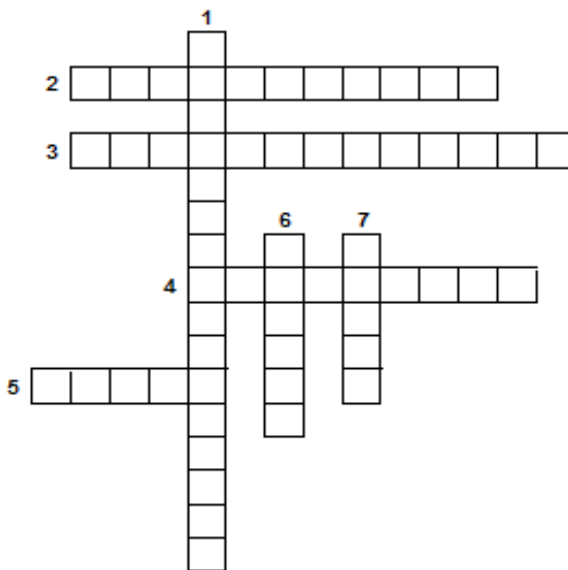

Instructions: Complete the crossword according to the hints that you are given.

Down

1. take a risk and not worry about it ...
throw ... (4 words)
6. a small, round, flat seed
7. of pleasing flavor

Across

2. tolerant or liberal in one's views and reactions
3. unable to change one's routine or pattern of behavior (5 words)
4. the essential facts or principles of a subject or skill (2 words)
5. a thin soup, often with vegetables or rice in it

Extension Activity

Make a healthy dish for a friend or family member.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Create a new recipe in order to make a dessert with vegetables.
- Include the ingredients, quantities, steps and cooking time.
- With an image, show how your dessert should look.
- Share your recipe with the group explaining the possible benefits or lack of benefits of the dessert.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I create a dessert using vegetables.

☐ ☐

I develop a recipe for a dessert.

☐ ☐

I explain my recipe to a group.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- broth (noun): water that has been boiled with meat, fish or vegetables
e.g. Vegetable broth soup?
- tasty (adjective): of pleasing flavor
e.g. It's healthy and sounds really tasty.
- lentil (noun): a small, round, flat seed
e.g. Lentil and sweet potato stew?
- to throw caution to the wind (expression): to take a risk and not worry about it e.g. You're going to have to throw caution to the wind and try some new things.
- to be stuck in a rut (expression): unable to change one's routine or pattern of behavior e.g. If you don't change some things, you'll be stuck in a rut.
- the basics (expression): the essential or most important ingredients
e.g. You need to make sure that you always have the basics.
- broad-minded (adjective): tolerant or liberal in one's views and reactions
e.g. Try to be a little more broad-minded.

Learning Points

The Result Clause

You can talk about the results of an action by using a result clause. There are several ways that you can do this both in speaking and writing.

If you want to talk about a result, you can use:

Connector	Use	Examples
so ... or so ... that	- at the start of the result clause - also before adjectives or adverbs - before adjectives or adverbs, you can use that after so	Someone stole her bicycle so she reported it to the police. I was so sick that I could barely get out of bed. I was so sick I could barely get out of bed. So sick was I, (that) I could barely get out of bed. (more formal)
such ... that	with or without an adjective	It was such a horrible movie, that all of the critics gave it bad reviews. The critics wrote with such disgust, that the movie only ran for a week in movie theatres.
in such a way that or in such a way as to	to show the result of the verb that comes before it	Teachers should speak in such a way that their students understand. Doctors should speak in such a way as to make their patients feel comfortable.
as a result or consequently	- can be used to start a sentence with the result - can be used in the middle of a sentence with the result following it	I got into a minor car accident in the mall parking lot, and consequently, had to call my insurance company. I got into a minor car accident in the mall parking lot. As a result, I had to call my insurance company.
otherwise or or else	used to show the consequence if something is not done	Luis needs to study harder for his final exam; otherwise, he will fail. Luis needs to study harder for his final exam or else he will fail.

Learning Points

Examples:

- I never have the right ingredients in my kitchen, and consequently, I eat too much fast food.
- You need to make sure that you always have the basics in your kitchen so that you can make a quick and healthy meal with just a few fresh ingredients.
- It looks so easy that even I could make it.
- These are such good recipes that I've served them all in the restaurant.
- You're going to have to throw caution to the wind and try some new things; otherwise, you'll be stuck in a rut.
- No arguing or else you won't make it through the month.

Unlikely Conditionals: Would in the If-Clause

You can use the second conditional to talk about unlikely conditions. In this conditional, you use would in the main clause.

You can also use would in the if-clause, but the meaning of the sentence would be that of a polite request.

You can use would in the if-clause to express requests or ask politely for someone to do something.

Unlikely Conditional:

If I had more money, I would buy more expensive clothing.

Polite Request:

If you would please wait here, the doctor will be in soon.

If you would help me with my homework, I could understand the lesson more easily.

Examples:

- If you would both pick a few recipes, we could make a shopping list.
- If you would just look at it, you would see that it's healthy and sounds really tasty.
- If you would take a little more time to look, we could find something more interesting.
- If you would just try them in some recipes, I think you would change your mind.

