

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

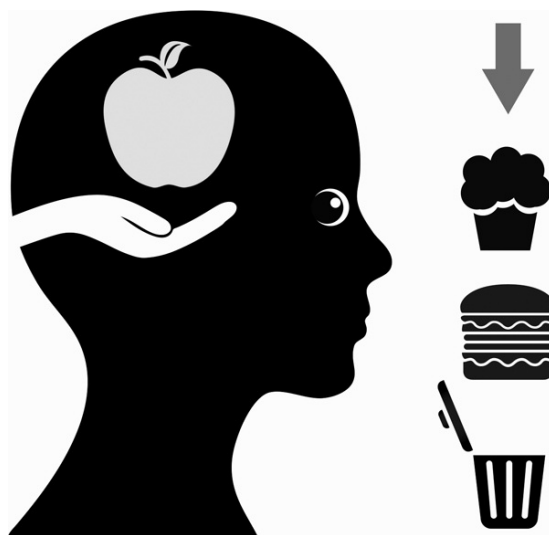

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's go grocery shopping!

Learning Outcome

Describe the reasons or results of events or actions in spoken or written texts, in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Who usually does the grocery shopping in your family or household?
- In your house, is it more common to make food from basic ingredients or to use pre-made foods? Why?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about people's personalities and use colloquial expressions.
- I can report other people's words and thoughts.
- I can talk about unlikely or impossible situations in the present or in the future.

Let's Explore!

Amy needs to pick up cinnamon, turmeric, ginger and sea salt.

* These are spices that have beneficial health effects.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: Okay, here we are at the supermarket. I've got to check out the prices of a few things for the restaurant, so you two start, and I'll meet you in the produce section in 10 minutes. If you should have any questions, text me.
- Amy: Okay. So let's start with our basics list. Vanessa said we needed to buy all of these spices. Cinnamon, turmeric, ginger, and sea salt. She promised that adding spices would make any vegetarian recipe more flavorful. She's really resolved and bent on us doing this cleanse.
- Peter: I asked her about using honey as a sweetener and she replied that it was okay. So we should get a big jar of honey. If you should see any maple syrup, we can get that too. Vanessa explained that you can replace sugar in dessert recipes with honey, maple syrup or stevia.
- Amy: I really don't like stevia. Should you try it, you'll find it has a bitter aftertaste.
- Peter: Okay, we won't get that.
- Amy: We also need some vegetable stock and some root vegetables.
- Peter: Okay. I'll grab those.
- Amy: Next we need to pick up green vegetables like celery, cucumber, broccoli and avocado. Vanessa reported that they are great detoxifiers.
- Peter: Wow, you're a real eager beaver! I'm really glad you're doing this with me. I think I'd be really apathetic if I had to do this on my own.
- Amy: I'm glad I'm doing it too. I think we're going to feel rejuvenated when we're done. Now, next on the list is legumes. Let's get chick peas and beans. Should you see lentils, don't forget to pick some up. I want to make that lentil stew.
- Peter: Fine. I'll get lentils but I'm not eating them.
- Amy: Peter, sometimes you are so childish.

Let's Practice!

What did Vanessa say?

Instructions: Unscramble the words in order to find out the mystery sentence.

1. said / we / to / needed / spices / these / buy / Vanessa / . / all

2. flavorful. / She promised / make any / that adding / spices would / vegetarian / recipe more

3. She / it / replied / okay. / was / that

4. with honey. / Vanessa / explained that / you can / in dessert / recipes / replace sugar

5. they were / reported that / Vanessa / great detoxifiers.

Let's practice!

What should I say?

Instructions: Complete the sentences below by choosing from the options that you are given.

Should someone ask you / should someone ask / you try it / Should you see / see any maple syrup / should have any questions.

1. If you _____, text me.
2. If you _____, we can get that too.
3. Should _____, you'll find it has a bitter aftertaste.
4. _____, don't forget to pick some up.
5. _____ what we're making, tell them it's a secret!

Extension Activity

Make a plan to change a habit.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Think of a habit that you would like to change.
- Write down why you want to change it and steps you can take to change it.
- Create a schedule for taking steps to change your habit. Set realistic goals.
- Compare your plan with a partner's plan and give each other advice on how to reach the goal of changing the habit.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I write about a habit I want to change.

☐ ☐

I write the steps I will take to change my habit.

☐ ☐

I create a schedule of steps to reach my goal.

☐ ☐

I compare my schedule with a partner's schedule.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- produce (noun): fresh fruits and vegetables
e.g. I'll meet you in the produce section in 10 minutes.
- to be bent on (verb): determined to do or have something e.g. She's really resolved and bent on us doing this cleanse.
- resolved (adjective): determined
e.g. I am resolved to finish this project.
- eager beaver (expression): a person who is willing to work very hard; enthusiastic person e.g. Wow, you're a real eager beaver!
- apathetic (adjective): disinterested; lacking enthusiasm or energy; unwilling to take action e.g. I think I'd be really apathetic if I had to do this on my own.
- on one's own (expression): without the help or support of other people e.g. It's always harder to change your habits on your own.
- childish (adjective): behaving or thinking as a child would e.g. Peter, sometimes you are so childish.

Learning Points

Reporting Statements

You can use reporting verbs followed by a that-clause when you report what other people say.

When you report what people say in your own words, you use reporting verbs like say, think, mention and so on. Most times you use a that-clause after these verbs.

The singer said that she had been singing since she was a child.

In speaking or informal usage, it is also okay to leave out that. You can also leave out that with other more frequently used reporting verbs such as agree, mention, promise, notice and warn.

*The actress said (that) she was looking forward to working with Steven Spielberg.
The director mentioned (that) the movie was being filmed in Ireland.*

BUT

- You should not leave out that with verbs like:

answer	reply	confide
argue	warn	speculate
complain	deny	grumble

The police speculated that the victim had known the killer. The man they arrested denied that he had committed the murder. He argued that he had been at work at the time of the murder.

- You should not leave out that in formal writing.
- You should not leave out that when the that-clause does not come right after the verb.

The man told the police and his lawyer that he was being falsely accused. The police promised the community that they were working hard to solve the crime.

Examples:

- Vanessa said we needed to buy all these spices.
- She promised that adding spices would make any vegetarian recipe more flavorful.
- Vanessa explained that you can replace sugar in dessert recipes with honey, maple syrup or stevia.
- Vanessa reported that they were great detoxifiers.

Learning Points

Unlikely Conditionals: Should in the If-Clause

You can use a conditional sentence to talk about unlikely events in the present and future.

You can form an unlikely conditional with would in the main clause and if + simple past in the if-clause.

You can also use should in the if-clause with a similar effect. It shows the possibility of the condition as well as the unlikelihood of it happening.

When you use should in the if-clause, the meaning is similar to the less formal expression by any chance.

- If the man should admit to the crime, the police would press charges. (The man is unlikely to admit to the crime, but if he does, the police would press charges.)
- If by any chance you see Maria, tell her that class has been canceled. (It is unlikely that you will see Maria, but if you do, tell her that class has been canceled.)

You can also change the if-clause structure and begin with should. This is a more formal structure.

- Should the man admit to the crime, the police would press charges.
- Should you see Maria, tell her that class has been canceled.

Examples:

- If you should have any questions, text me.
- If you should see any maple syrup, we can get that too.
- Should you try it, you'll find it has a bitter aftertaste.
- Should you see lentils, don't forget to pick some up.

