

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

• Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Describe emotions and feelings in present and past situations in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- When did you resolve to make a change that you stuck to?
- What are some things that are obstacles to successfully breaking a bad habit?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about the reasons for and results of an action or an event.
- I can report other people's words and thoughts.
- I can talk about unlikely or impossible situations in the present or in the future.

Let's Explore!

Vanessa checks in with Peter.

* To "check in with someone" means to check to see how they are progressing with something.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Peter: Hello?
- Vanessa: Hi Peter. I was just calling because I wanted to find out how the cleanse is going.
- Peter: It's going pretty well. I've been really resolved to sticking to the diet and not having any sugar or dairy or meat. It's really difficult to eliminate those things, but I'm doing my best.
- Vanessa: You indicated that you would have trouble forgoing caffeine. How is that going?
- Peter: Well, that's been a hard addiction to break. I've had a lot of headaches, and a few friends have told me that I'm a bit moody. If I could still have java, I would be happier, but I understand that caffeine isn't healthy.
- Vanessa: Yes, that happens during a cleanse since your body is trying to get used to a change. Due to the sudden lack of caffeine, your body is experiencing withdrawal. It will pass. If it were easy to break these addictions, we wouldn't have to do a cleanse!
- Peter: Other than that, I feel pretty good. Thanks to all the fresh fruit and raw vegetables I'm eating, I feel much more energetic.
- Vanessa: That's great! Once you have gotten rid of the toxins in your body you will feel much better. My doctor persuaded me to eat raw vegetables at every meal, and I really feel the difference. How about Amy? She decided to do this cleanse due to your commitment.
- Peter: She confided that she has cheated a couple times. If she didn't have to go without wine, she would be happier! She has gone out with friends a couple times and had a glass of wine. She assured me that it was only one glass. She said she's eating lots of vegetables and drinking more water than she used to.
- Vanessa: Well, I think you've both done really well. I'm very proud of you both!

Let's Practice!

How likely is Peter to give up coffee?

Instructions: Complete the option that best completes each sentence.

1. If I _____, I would be happier.
 - a. still has java
 - b. could still have java
 - c. still could java have
2. If _____ to go without wine, she would be happier!
 - a. he didn't have
 - b. she had
 - c. she didn't have
3. If you _____, you wouldn't eat sugar or dairy or meat.
 - a. resolves to stick to your diet
 - b. resolved to stick to your diet
 - c. resolving to sticking to your diet
4. If you found it difficult _____, you'd have to stop eating them one at a time.
 - a. to eliminate those things
 - b. eliminating the things
 - c. elimination of thing

Let's Practice!

What did they say to Peter?

Instructions: Unscramble the words in order to find the mystery sentence.

1. indicated that / you would / You / caffeine. / forgoing / have trouble
2. told me / that I'm / a bit / moody. / friends have / A few
3. to eat / persuaded me / raw vegetables / at every / meal. / My doctor
4. has cheated / that she / a couple / times. / She confided
5. one glass. / me that / it was / She assured / only

Extension Activity

Watch Victoria McDowell's TED-Ed video "How to Break the Bad Habits in Your Life".

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Watch Victoria McDowell's TED-Ed video "How to Break the Bad Habits in your Life".
- Take notes as you watch the video. Look up any new vocabulary.
- Write a paragraph summarizing what you heard in the video. Include a statement about whether you agree with all the advice or not.
- Present your summary to a partner or your group.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I watch and listen to a TED-Ed video.

☐ ☐

I take notes while I watch the video.

☐ ☐

I look up new vocabulary.

☐ ☐

I write a paragraph summarizing the video.

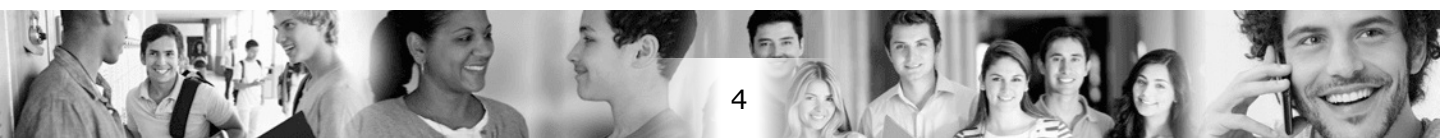

☐ ☐

I present my summary to a partner or group.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- resolved (adjective): firmly determined to do something e.g. I've been really resolved to sticking to the diet and not having any sugar or dairy or meat.
- dairy (noun): products containing or made from milk
e.g. Some people need to cut out dairy from their diet.
- to break (verb): interrupt; stop e.g. If it were easy to break these addictions, we wouldn't have to do a cleanse!
- to eliminate (verb): completely remove or get rid of something e.g. It's really difficult to eliminate those things, but I'm doing my best.
- to forgo (verb): go without e.g. You indicated that you would have trouble forgoing caffeine.
- java (noun): coffee
e.g. If I could still have java, I would be happier.
- to go without (verb): to live with the absence of something e.g. If she didn't have to go without wine, she would be happier!

Learning Points

Talking About Reasons And Results

You can talk about reasons and results in both speaking and writing by using various expressions and structures.

There are several expressions that you can use to talk about the cause of a situation or its effect.

Some of the most common words to introduce reasons are: because, since, and as. You can also introduce the reason or cause of a situation with:

because of / owing to/ due to thanks to (this can be used both in positive situations or in a negative way)

- The baby woke up because of/due to the loud noise from the party downstairs.
- Owing to the loud noise from the party downstairs, the baby woke up.*
- Thanks to the loan from the bank, the company was able to rent an office space. (positive situation)*
- The house is a mess thanks to you and your friends. (not really thankful)

If you want to talk about the effect of a situation, you can use so, as a result, and therefore.

You can also use:

the cause of ... is

... is caused by/is due to ...

- The cause of obesity is inactivity and unhealthy eating habits.*
- Obesity is caused by/is due to inactivity and unhealthy eating habits.

Remember that some expressions are followed by a clause:

because

since

as

therefore

Other expressions are followed by a noun:

because of

due to owing to thanks to

Examples:

- I was just calling because I wanted to find out how the cleanse is going.
- That happens during a cleanse since your body is trying to get used to a change.
- Due to the sudden lack of caffeine, your body is experiencing withdrawal.

Learning Points

- Thanks to all the fresh fruit and raw vegetables I'm eating, I feel much more energetic.
- She decided to do this cleanse due to your commitment.

Reporting Other People's Words and Thoughts

You can report other people's thoughts or words by using your own words or saying exactly what they said. There are several reporting verbs that can be used with a that-clause and objects, as well as different structures for reporting questions and negatives.

You can say what someone else thinks or says by using their exact words. When you do this, you need to put their words in quotation marks. The quotation can come before or after the reporting clause with the reporting verb. You can also put the quotation on either side of the reporting clause.

- "I missed the bus, and I was late for work today," complained Anna.
- Anna complained, "I missed the bus, and was I late for work today."
- "I missed the bus," complained Anna, "and I was late for work today."

You can use a that-clause after most reporting verbs.

The gymnast said that she had been doing gymnastics since she was 2 years old.

In speaking or informal usage, it is okay to leave out that. You can also leave out that with the common reporting verbs: agree, mention, promise, notice and warn.

The actor said (that) he was excited about working with Angelina Jolie.
The director mentioned (that) the movie was going to cost two million dollars to make.

You should not leave out that:

→ in formal writing

→ with verbs like: answer, argue, complain, reply, warn, deny, confide, speculate and grumble.

The teacher speculated that one of her students had stolen the exam from her bag.
The student she suspected denied that he had taken anything from her bag.
He argued that he had been playing basketball in the gym that afternoon.

→ when the that-clause does not come right after the verb

The woman told her son that she was not going to live in a home for senior citizens when she got older.
He promised his mother that she would be able to live with him.

Some verbs do not require an object before the that-clause.

- The man remarked that reading a book was one of the best ways to relax.

Learning Points

It is not always necessary to put an object after the reporting verbs promise, teach, show, warn and advise.

- I overheard my mother talking with my father. He promised (her) that he would be home early if the meeting got canceled.

But for reporting verbs like, inform, notify, convince, tell, assure, remind, reassure and persuade, an object before the that-clause is necessary.

- My parents informed the school that I would not be attending classes this morning.
- He told his wife that he would be home late.

Some verbs also require a preposition after the verb if you want to include a personal object before the that-clause.

Learning Points

to	with	of
My father said to me that he was very proud that I won the trophy. Ricardo explained to his sister that he couldn't drive her to the mall because he had to go to work.	The woman disagreed with her husband that the opera was boring.	Formally: The teacher asked (of her students) that they read the instructions carefully. The coach demanded (of his players) that they play fairly. Informally, you can simply use a to-infinitive clause with ask and require. Demand cannot be used with a to-infinitive. The teacher asked her students to read the instructions carefully.
say admit suggest complain point out explain announce confess recommend report indicate propose mention	agree disagree joke check argue	ask require demand

Learning Points

Sometimes you want to say what someone didn't say. You can make the reporting verb negative.

- She didn't talk about her vacation. (nothing was said about her vacation)

If what the person said was negative, you can either make the reported clause negative, or make the reporting verb negative.

- "My vacation wasn't great," thought Laura. She didn't think her vacation was great. OR She thought her vacation wasn't great.

If you want to report when someone asks a wh-word question, you can use the question word in the reported clause. If someone asks a yes/no question, use if or whether in the reported clause.

- "Where did you go on vacation?" asked John.

John asked (me) where I went on vacation. (do not use a form of 'do' in the reported clause)

- "Is this seat taken?" asked the old woman.

The old woman asked if/whether this seat was taken.

- "Who is the best actress in Hollywood?" asked my teacher.

My teacher asked who the best actress in Hollywood was. OR My teacher asked who was the best actress in Hollywood. (you can put the complement before or after the form of 'be' in wh-questions with who, which or what)

Examples:

- You indicated that you would have trouble forgoing caffeine.
- A few friends have told me that I'm a bit moody.
- My doctor persuaded me to eat raw vegetables at every meal.
- She confided that she has cheated a couple times.
- She assured me that it was only one glass.

