

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Food is fuel for your body.

Learning Outcome

Describe the reasons or results of events or actions in spoken or written texts, in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What is a healthy diet?
- Do you think your diet is healthy? Why or why not?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about beliefs and opinions and use colloquial expressions.
- I can talk about the results of an action or an event.
- I can report other people's words and thoughts.

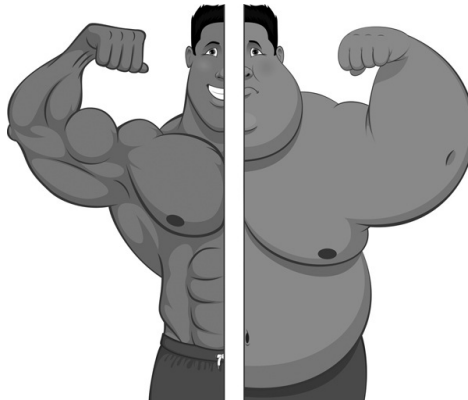

Let's Explore!

Vanessa tells Peter, "You are what you eat*."

* "You are what you eat" means that to feel and look good, you need to eat good food.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: Peter! You put so much sugar in your coffee! And, do you use cream?
- Peter: Yes, I always order double-double.
- Vanessa: You know what people say, "You are what you eat", right?
- Peter: Yes, I know. If I eat unhealthy food, I'll be unhealthy. Junk in, junk out. It's just a habit. I'm so used to putting sugar in that I just do it automatically. Amy said that I was already sweet enough, so I don't need more sugar.
- Vanessa: Anyway, you really should try to cut down on fat and refined sugar. White sugar is such a damaging ingredient that some people consider it a poison.
- Peter: A poison? Really?
- Vanessa: It's very bad for you. My doctor warned me that it can cause cancer. Cancer feeds on sugar. We get sugar from fruit and other foods so we shouldn't add more in the form of refined sugar.
- Peter: That sounds pretty serious. I don't think much about sugar. My doctor told me that I have to cut down on fat. I've been trying to eat less fried food but again, it's just a habit.
- Vanessa: Have you ever thought about doing a cleanse? A friend of mine did one and she said it totally changed her eating habits. It changed her diet in such a way that she doesn't have the cravings that she used to.
- Peter: What's a cleanse?
- Vanessa: You have to cut out sugar, fat, starch, dairy, alcohol, caffeine and sometimes meat for a specific period. Most people do it for a month.
- Peter: A month? I'm not sure I could do it for a day! I'm so addicted to caffeine that I have to have at least two coffees a day, or I'm jonesing.
- Vanessa: Yes. That's the point. You need to break your addictions. It takes a while for your body to get used to not having it every day. I think you should try it.

Let's Practice!

Peter says he needs to cut down on fat!

Instructions: Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. You know what people say, "You are what you eat," right?
2. Amy said that I was already sweet enough so, I don't need more sugar.
3. My doctor warned me that it can cause cancer.
4. My doctor told me that I have to cut down on fat.
5. A friend of mine did one and, she said it totally changed her eating habits.

Let's Practice!

What words talk about the dangers of bad habits?

Instructions: Find the words in the word search below according to the hints that you are given.

1. With two creams and two sugars.
2. Useless items or garbage.
3. Highly processed.
4. A substance that is capable of causing illness or death.
5. A disease caused by uncontrolled division of abnormal cells.
6. A settled or regular tendency or practice.
7. A powerful desire for something.
8. To have a compulsive desire for something.

U	P	F	B	P	D	E	E	P	T	U	W	J	L	P
A	X	T	U	S	F	Y	K	N	C	A	N	C	E	R
V	B	J	U	N	K	W	C	Y	S	Q	M	D	A	B
J	D	I	I	T	K	K	Z	G	J	O	N	E	S	Z
S	O	O	P	Q	K	C	J	R	W	A	R	D	D	T
F	U	U	O	M	J	M	X	E	B	I	B	A	Y	X
R	B	Z	I	X	G	C	O	F	R	G	N	Z	J	B
U	L	E	S	E	M	R	J	I	S	J	C	I	L	J
Y	E	W	O	U	J	A	U	N	T	H	M	Z	W	O
A	D	G	N	T	B	V	T	E	H	O	R	T	B	K
E	O	J	L	X	H	I	H	D	I	B	G	H	G	M
B	U	E	M	F	D	N	V	X	A	J	W	S	G	Z
S	B	Q	D	Z	N	G	T	N	N	Q	P	T	J	A
U	L	S	O	E	E	R	O	H	A	B	I	T	B	I
Q	E	C	Q	A	G	J	T	A	A	P	M	I	N	C

Extension Activity

Research different types of diets.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- On the Internet, research different types of diets for different health concerns.
- Make a list of the diets that you find.
- Choose one of the diets and do more detailed research on it.
- Write a paragraph about the diet, its aim and how to follow it.
- Read your paragraph to your partner or class.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I research types of diets.

☐ ☐

I research a diet in more detail.

☐ ☐

I write a paragraph about the diet I researched.

☐ ☐

I read my paragraph to a partner or group.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- double-double (expression): with two creams and two sugars
e.g. I always order double-double.
- junk food (noun): pre-prepared or packaged food that has low nutritional value
e.g. I was eating too much junk food - junk in, junk out.
- refined (adjective): highly processed
e.g. You really should try to cut down on fat and refined sugar.
- poison (noun): a substance that is capable of causing illness or death
e.g. White sugar is such a damaging ingredient that some people consider it a poison.
- cancer (noun): a disease caused by an uncontrolled division of abnormal cells e.g. My doctor warned me that it can cause cancer.
- habit (noun): a settled or regular tendency or practice
e.g. I've been trying to eat less fried food, but again, it's just a habit.
- craving (noun): a powerful desire for something e.g. It changed her diet in such a way that she doesn't have the cravings that she used to.
- to jones (verb): to have a compulsive desire for something e.g. I'm so addicted to caffeine that I have to have at least two coffees a day, or I'm jonesing.
- Junk in, junk out. (expression): bad food going into your body is not a good thing
e.g. Junk in, junk out, is what happens when you eat unhealthy food.

Learning Points

The Result Clause

You can use a result clause in your sentence to show the result of a situation. A result is something that happens because of something else that happened before.

Result clauses can be expressed by using:

so ... or so ... that

This comes at the start of the result clause and also before adjectives or adverbs. When you use so before adjectives or adverbs, you can use that after it.

Example:

She needed some more money, so she applied for another job.

I was so frustrated that I almost hit someone.

The next sentence is more formal, but you can use the so at the beginning of the sentence.

Example:

So frustrated was I that I almost hit someone.*

If you omit that, you need a comma in its place.

Example:

So frustrated was I, I almost hit someone.*

such ... (that)

You can use such before a noun followed by that. You can use such with or without an adjective.

You can omit that.

Examples:

It was such an enjoyable wedding that most of the guests left after midnight.

The couple showed such honesty and happiness while saying their wedding vows that most of the guests cried.

in such a way that or in such a way as to

You use this to show the result of the verb that comes before it. In other words, "with the result that".

Example:

The president spoke in such a way that everyone could understand him.

(Everyone could understand the president because of how he spoke to them.)

Learning Points

He played the violin in such a way as to leave the audience speechless.
(Leaving the audience speechless is the result of him playing the violin in a certain way.)

Examples:

- I'm so used to putting sugar in that I just do it automatically.
- White sugar is such a damaging ingredient that some people consider it a poison.
- It changed her diet in such a way that she doesn't have the cravings that she used to.
- I'm so addicted to caffeine that I have to have at least two coffees a day, or I'm jonesing.

Reporting Other People's Words and Thoughts

You can report what other people say or think by using your own words or by quoting them exactly.

If you are talking to someone and want to relay what another person said or thought, you can use a reporting verb (say, tell, explain, etc.) and a reported clause.

The reporting clause explains who said something (the speaker) and the reported clause is what he/she said.

Examples:

Laura said (that) she was going to study psychology abroad.
He complained about how expensive it was to live in the city.

In the examples above, you are using your own words to report what someone else said. The words in bold are the reporting clause. The underlined parts are the reported clauses.

If you want to report exactly what was said, however, you will need to use quotation marks.

Examples:

"It is expensive to live in the city," he complained.
Laura said, "I'm going to study psychology abroad."
"Unfortunately," Laura admitted, "I will miss my family."

The reporting clause (in bold) can come before, after or within the quotation.

What about the following examples?

"I'm going to study psychology abroad," said Laura.
"I'm going to study psychology abroad," she said.

Did you notice the difference?

Learning Points

If the reporting clause comes after what is said (the quotation), the reporting verb usually goes before the subject. If the subject is a pronoun, the reporting verb goes after.

Examples:

- You know that people say, "You are what you eat," right?
- Amy said that I was already sweet enough, so I don't need more sugar.
- My doctor warned me that it can cause cancer.
- My doctor told me that I have to cut down on fat.
- A friend of mine did one, and she said it totally changed her eating habits.

